International Law [<http://www.un.org/law/>]

The United States has treaties and conventions with other nations that are binding to those who fall within their jurisdiction.

Many other nations have laws, such as slander and libel, which are much stricter than those in the United States. Be aware that any statement made or actions performed could affect any assets within that country. Also, future travel through such countries could open one up to prosecution under their laws for statements made or actions performed at an earlier time outside that country's sphere of influence.

Federal Law

Provides links to major Federal laws applicable to the use of campus information technology resources, including privacy, security, copyright, computer fraud and abuse, accessibility, and SPAM.

COLORADO Law

Provides links to major State laws applicable to the use of campus information technology resources, including privacy, security, use of State resources, computer crime, identity theft, and SPAM.
